Editor's Note

“Violin and the Helping Hands”

About a century ago , a poor man was playing the violin on a bridge in London, but his music did not attract the attention of passerby, a strange man stopped next to him. The poor man asked him to give him alms, but the stranger did unexpected thing, by taking violin from poor man and he started playing it, and unusually, the music attracted a passersby, so he stopped to listen, then threw money into poor man hat. The stranger continued to play beautiful music, the crowd increased , everyone wanted to listen and the poor man hat was filled with money.

The poor man was very happy with the much money he got that day.

And the stranger is non other than The Famous Musician – Niccolo Paganini.

”Helping can be done in many ways and real happiness comes from helping others”.

Thank You
